NUMBER 6.

Roads and Committees' Reports.

F. W. Sanborn employed Stephen Litchfield, civil engineer of Brunswick, to make a plan and estimate of the cost of building a Macadam road from the head of Main street to the Milllet turn.

His estimate is as follows:

Excavating and getting road bed to grade, 1000 ft. x 12 ft. x 12 ft. $ 500.00
 Crushed stone (local), 1000 cu. yd. 7500.00
 Labor to lay down, 1000 cu. yd. 1000.00
 Pipe for surface water, 1000 ft. 50.00
 Curb for surface water, 1000 ft. 100.00
 Putting in catch basins, etc. 200.00

Add 10 per cent $114.00
 Total $6140.00

If the N. & P. Street Railway should pay their portion as is customary in some towns it would reduce the expense some $3000.00.

This estimate shows that 3000 feet of road built to 10 ft. wide and 12 ft. deep would cost $6140.00, provided the town would pay their portion of it, $3000.00.

So called permanent roads can be built but they cost money and a lot of it.

The committee appointed by the town at the last annual meeting to look into the road building problem do not recommend the purchase of a stone crusher and the building of Macadam roads. They are too expensive.

The committee are of the opinion that better earth and gravel roads can be made by the use of a steam roller, though in their report they refrain from advising the town to purchase a 20-ton $3000 roller but we infer they are in favor of it.

This committee visited Rumford, Topham, Brunswick, Sec. and Biddeford, and tell us that in order to maintain good roads it is necessary to establish grades and drainage and bestow upon them care.

Shall the town of Norway buy a steam road roller? That's a question. Ought we to do it?

The town can have without expense the engineer's plans for the improvement of Main street and from them estimate of the expense of different kinds of roads can be made.

The plans can be seen at the ADVERTISER office.

A Jolly Book Party.

The home of Mrs. Ernest Hutchins on Bridge St. was the scene of a jolly party Friday evening.

This party was in the form of a "Book Party," and was given in honor of Eulalie Davis and Ethel Bradbury.

There were about twenty present and one of the pleasantest of evenings enjoyed by the company.

Each one present represented, either in costume or by some distinguishing mark, the title of some book. Mrs. June Hutchins represented, The Trail of the Lone Star, by trailing a pine bough fastened to her dress; Eulalie Davis represented, Lavender and Lilacs, and wore a dress containing lavender with a wide lace collar; Ethel Bradbury, The Brass Bell, carried a small brass bell; Fannie Bynon and Jennie Mann represented, The Pickwick Papers, and had a paper with toothpicks and a lamp wick pinned to it; Blanche Smith and Christine Leavitt, Two Hearts and a Cross; Alice Schuener and Mrs. Ruth Parker, My Lady of Decorations, each decorated with jewelry and beads; Mrs. Fannie Cullinan, Oliver Twist, and wore a knot of hemp twisted into various shapes; Mrs. Maud Mann, The Man of the Hour, wore a watch open to view; Grace Bennett, The La P. Lighters, and wore several strings of matches representing beads; Clara Schuener, The Path Finder and carried a small lantern; Gertrude Murphy, The Conquest of Kitty; Viola Brown, Squire Finn, and carried a card containing a square drawn in one corner and a colored fish with a lot of fish; Esther Hutchins, Under the Lilacs, and wore a wreath of lilacs; E. A. Nevers, The Secret of a Lock and carried a small curling iron; Edith Parker represented the Rose in a Ring, and carried a small rose in her right hand.

Blanche Smith guessed the names of the largest number of the books represented and was presented with a band some valentines. During the remainder of the evening games were enjoyed and refreshments of ice cream, cake, fancy crackers, and punch was served.

Mrs. Barbara Ellen Buswell.

Mrs. Barbara Ellen Buswell died at her home in Hudson, Mass., Jan. 27, aged 84 years, nine months and 24 days.

The funeral was from her late home on Monday afternoon, service being conducted by Rev. Alexander Wiswell, Congregational pastor of Uxbridge, assisted by Rev. Frederick M. Cutler, pastor of Hudson Congregational Church.

The body was taken to Norway, Tuesday, for burial.

If you want to put an article in the Norway Town Meeting Warrant you must hand it in to the selectmen not later than Monday, Feb. 13th.

The Norway Branch train got snowed during the snow storm, Tuesday, and it was some little time before it could be shoveled out and the track in running order.

VOLUME XLII.

Seventy-five Dollar Judge for Norway Municipal Court.

Tuesday, Feb. 28th, at Augusta, before the Committee on Legal Affairs will be a hearing on "an act additional to act creating Norway Municipal Court," which, being interpreted, means a recorder for the Norway Municipal Court.

This bill says the recorder is to have equal authority and powers with the judge and to hold court in his absence at a salary of $75 per year. The bill specifies that the recorder shall be a resident of Norway or Paris and to be appointed by the Governor.

The query—Who would accept this position, qualified in age and character, suits and learned in the law, discharge the duties of the judge for this ridiculously meager remuneration?

Can the taxpayers afford to pay more? Is it necessary to have a recorder? Real estate assessments can now be made by other means and at less expense than taxpayers. No doubt the recorder if of a kind might be an ornamental adjunct to go along with the new court rooms, but does public necessity or convenience require it?

This court at the present time costs the town $550 per year for rent and salary of the judge, and the total fines, fees and costs last year turned over to county were $204.39. This may be "an eye for an eye" but the average for the past four years is a little rising of $300 per annum.

Is an increased expenditure of money in this line necessary? We know how the taxpayers feel! Ought the bill to pass?

The burdened citizen who is chased by the tax collector answers with an emphatic "no."

Mrs. Clara R. Annis.

Thursday, February second, occurred the funeral of Mrs. Clara R. Annis, the home of her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Bradbury, 18 Tucker street, Rev. M. C. Ward officiating.

She had been sick for several weeks, and not getting any better, acted upon the doctor's advice and went to the hospital, but only lived six days after the operation. A good Christian ever ready to do what her hands found to do, it troubled her to have her friends go through such a sorrow.

She had followed the profession of nursing for several years. Her husband was a member of the church and she had been a member of the church since her childhood. She leaves four children to her husband, Mrs. Lenora F. Bradbury, Sanford M. Annis, Walter L. Annis and Mrs. W. Kennerson.

A Plea

For the Children of the Rural Schools.

Mr. Editor: As I cannot vote or have a voice in the business of the town I am going to ask you for space in your paper to make a plea for the children of the rural schools in the town of Norway.

It is in regard to music and drawing. As I understand it the town raises $5000 a year to be spent for music and drawing which is spent in the village schools and at Norway Lake. It is a good thing and what should be done in every town; but why can't every school payer pay his proportion of the cost of this $5000. Why should just the few get the benefit? There is as much talent in the rural districts as in the village or at the Lake.

Now, the fathers of the children in the rural districts are paying for the children of the village and Lake to be educated in music and drawing when his own children have to go without. Why is it? And is it right? Why not let them all alike? Can't something be done so that each child will have an equal part?

Now fathers stand for the rights of their own children; see that they have equal rights with the rest of the children in the town. Give them all a like chance and you may wake up to find you have a better school in Norway.

Wreck on G. T. Ry. Below South Paris.

The passenger train which is due at South Paris at 3:26 was wrecked Wednesday afternoon about a mile and a half below South Paris station.

The train was running at about 35 miles an hour when suddenly it left the rails. The train consisted of a baggage car and three passenger cars. All the trucks were derailed except the truck wheels of the engine. The first knowledge of anything wrong the train was bounding over the ties and came to a sudden stop.

The tender turned around sideways and in so doing set the brakes which stopped the train, and had it not been for this the accident would have been more serious or had the accident happened a length of the train ahead undoubtedly it would have gone over the embankment, but fortunately there was no one seriously injured.

The wrecking train was sent for and arrived early in the evening and the work of clearing the tracks was commenced. The Norway Branch train in charge of E. N. Anderson, H. L. Wilson and the mail and baggage to West Paris where the railroad men took the train to Island Pond from West Paris.

The accident was caused by the spreading of the rails.

The afternoon train from the west went as far as the wreck and when the engine and train came from Portland they charged cars, one returning west and the other back to Portland.

The wrecking crew was soon at work and continued so throughout the night and at about six o'clock in the morning the tracks were cleared.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Norway citizen.

M. M. Kilgore, Danforth St., Norway, Me., says: "I do not think there is another kidney remedy on the market as effective as Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered from backache and pains through my loins. My kidneys were badly disordered and the secretions passed irregularly. At times my back was so lame and sore that I could scarcely stand. I did not rest well at night and felt miserable in every way. At last I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply from Stone's Drug Store. They cured me and I have been well since. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house at all times and recommend them whenever I hear anyone complaining of kidney trouble."

A Double Disturbance.

By Edward A. Tyler.

In this story great and grand. By the sphyras torn and fanned.

(Just be careful when you stand. On in some other place you'll find. Land of liberty and light. Where the sun shines always bright. (Go not to keep that up all night. If you wish to sleep at night.)

And the best beneath the skies. Richly grows and multiplies. (Spies that tell ever spies. Be brown-tail moths and dirty flies.) Making suitable a place. For the nobles of the race; (It is surely a disgrace. How that fellow holds his face.)

It is certainly sublime. To be living at this time. To will give the foot a little climb. If he'll cut out that old climb. With the wheat and the best. The Almighty ever blessed. (If he ain't the darndest pest. Then ever didn't let us rest.)

So there will gladly dwell. The churning mill tells my knell. (It has had some more show-down well. He would surely go to—hang—)

The Business Man's Ten Commandments. RULE I. Don't lie—if wastes my time and yours. I'm sure to catch you in the end and that's the wrong end.

RULE II. Don't catch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes my face long.

RULE III. Give me more than I expect and I'll pay you more than you pay if you increase my profits.

RULE IV. You owe so much to yourself that you can't afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt or keep on my shop.

RULE V. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, can't see temptation when they meet it.

RULE VI. Mind your own business and a time you'll have business of your own to mind.

RULE VII. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. The employee who is willing to steal for me is also capable of stealing from me.

RULE VIII. It's none of my business what you do at night. But if dissipation affects your work, you do me a wrong, and you do half as much as I do, and you'll last half as long as you hope.

RULE IX. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a man to tell me what I need one of my dollars.

RULE X. Don't kick if I kick—if you're worth while correcting, you are worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotten apples.

WIFE GOT TIP TOP ADVICE. "My wife wanted me to take our boy to the doctor to cure an ugly boil," writes D. H. of Stroud, Okla. "I said 'Put Buckle's Arnica Salve on it.' She did so, and it cured the boil in a short time." Quickest healer of Burns, Scalds, Cuts, Corns, Bruises, Sprains, Swellings. Best Pile cure on earth. Try it. Only 25c at The Noyes Drug Store.

"Don'ts" for Young Wives. "Don't take other people into your confidence if your John offends you," says Margaret E. Sangster in Woman's Companion for January. "Neither your mother nor your college chum, your dearest girl friend nor the agreeable stranger whom you meet the other day should be the recipient of your grievances, if you have them. Your John should be a sanctuary inviolate from profanation, and remember that it is profaned when you complain to some one else of John's ill temper, his neglect or his parsimony. I know this is a very difficult don't, but the instant you feel the urge to complain of your husband to people beyond his door, she breaks down a barrier and makes way for every sort of trouble to enter the field of home."

"Don't be so meek and spiritless that you suffer in silence, while you spoil your husband by letting him drift in the role of a domestic despot. Mrs. Henry D. La Pasture in her novel, 'The Tyrant,' shows the eclipse of gaiety and the confusion of a family life which follow in the wake when a husband is overbearing as a wife over-gentle."

"What ever you do, don't nag or sulk. A wife who goes about with the air of a martyr kills her happiness. Don't be inconsolable when your husband fails to do anything for you. He is waiting. Don't object to his bringing home guests unannounced. If they arrive with him unexpectedly, don't apologize for the house or the meal or the children or anything else. Put on extra plates and cups and let them share 'pot luck.'"

"Don't have bills, if you can help yourself. Pay as you go, and do persuade your husband to give you a definite housekeeping allowance from the beginning of your housekeeping. You needn't be afraid of the maid. Thousands of us are in awe of this personage, and she has unfortunately discovered it and behaves accordingly."

Breaks Up Cold. Thousands are using the New Method with Wonderful Results.

Out out this prescription. Madam: you are the one that must keep the health of the household, and you are the one in these days of high prices that must manage things economically.

Someone in the family may have a cold. It is not a big thing, but it is a head, perhaps in the chest, and it is a matter not where; here is some advice and a prescription that will break up any cold in a few hours, and without taking harmful drugs or strong drinks.

First of all, look after the bowels. The tongue will show whether the bowels are right or not. If the bowels need attention, a good dose of castor oil made into a little orange juice will do the trick, although any reliable cathartic will do.

Then try this economical treatment: into a bowl of boiling water pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEI (pronounce it: Hye-omee) and breathe over the bowl with a towel, and breathe over the bowl the soothing, healing vapor.

Breathe this vapor for five or ten minutes until the head feels fine and until morning.

A bottle of HYOMEI costs 50 cents at Noyes Drug Store and drugist everywhere. A complete outfit which includes a hard rubber pocket inhaler with a towel, and breathe over the bowl, which you can breathe it any time or place, costs only 1.00. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds sore throat and croup, or money back.

TRIED REMEDY FOR THE GRIP.

WILSON'S MILLS.

N. R. Leach has lost a horse. Joe Hart was in Milan on business this week.

Genie Hart visited her sister, Ellen Littlehale, Friday.

Sydney Twitcheell, Jim Swan and Chas Wilson are in town.

Addie Leach and Mamie Grant have returned from Colebrook.

The road roller had to break roads on Sunday the first time this winter.

Lloyd Flint and Walter Littlehale are working in the woods for H. G. Bennett.

Mrs. Lewis Olson and children visited her mother, Mrs. W. W. Linnell the past week.

Henry W. Parks.

Henry W. Park died at his home in Mexico, Friday morning, after an illness of two years. Mr. Park had been in trade in Mexico since 1880, with the exception of one year, when he was in the ordinance department in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Park was a member of Blazing Star lodge of Maconus, of Tucson lodge, I. O. O. F. He had held many town offices and was treasurer of his town for 25 consecutive years; and had been a member of the State legislature. Since the close of the Civil War, he has been postmaster at Mexico Corner, resigning in April 1909, on account of failing health.

Mr. Park was born in Dixfield 77 years ago. He was educated in the common schools and high school of Dixfield.

He was three times married, his first wife being Glean Phelps of Dixfield. Two children were born to them, Albert D. Park of South Paris and Mrs. Eliza P. Richards of Mexico. His second wife was Ellen Reed of Mexico and they had one son, Elmer C. of Bethel. His third wife was Emma L. Gleason of Mexico. Their four children are Mrs. E. S. Small, Mrs. Wallace Moore, Mrs. Clifford Rolfe and Henry W., Jr., who lives at home with his mother. All the children survive.

Spelling Book at Wellesley.

More than half of the young women at Wellesley college have been found deficient in ability to "spell well." Six hundred students are to give up their Saturday afternoons, as well as other recreation periods of the week, to drills in orthography. With the opening of the new term, the whole undergraduate body is made to understand that spelling will no longer be tolerated, that a bachelor's degree will be denied those who shall neglect or ignore the forms of written words.

What all the schools that prepared these charming young ladies for college? Their trouble extends back to the grammar schools, to the elementary schools. Perhaps the pupils were not altogether correct in spelling. The methods by which correct spelling is taught have changed. The days of the "spelling bee" are past, when every pupil learned by emulation the difference in the endings of "assessable" and "collectible." The present generation of college women was taught to read before it learned to spell. They never learned to read letter by letter, as John Ruskin advised, but were taught instead to "skim" their words and sentences in a fashion that left no time for intensive application to the very forms and characters. The classes in spelling and punctuation at Wellesley will have able teachers, no doubt, who will do their best to supply the deficiencies of the fourth and fifth grades. They have a sorry task.

Have plenty of windows in the dairy barn if you would keep the cows in good condition and reduce the number of bacteria that get into the milk. Use sense in opening. A big summer's milk yields more windows open than a cold winter one.

Very Hard. "It is very hard to have nothing to eat but oatmeal when others have dainties," muttered John. "It is very hard to get up on cold winter mornings and sleep when other fellows can lie in bed. It's very hard not to get any Christmas presents, and not even have a tree, when Jim and Leo and Arthur get so many pretty things all the time."

"It is a great blessing," said his grandmother, as she sat in the kitchen, "to have oatmeal when so many are without it. It is a great blessing to have wood. It is a great blessing to be alive and well on this bright Christmas morning when so many are sick and suffering."

"Why, granny, you seem to think nothing is hard," said the boy, still in a grumbling tone.

"No, John, there is one thing I think is hard."

"What is that?" asked the boy, glad that at last his grandmother was going to complain.

"Why, my dear John, I think that heart is very hard that is not thankful for so many blessings."

Friendships. One reason our friendships fail is that we think of them as complete and established things. Friendship is a thing never complete—it is always in the making. A vow of friendship, no matter how earnest, is, at best, only a promise to pay; whereas, many of our mistakes in those big qualities and requirements of truth, honor, usefulness, fidelity—does it occur to you that any one of these can be established once and for all? Indeed, it cannot. Loyalty yesterday is not loyalty today, nor will an unselfish act of the day that is past serve to meet the obligation of unselfishness of the day that is here. It is not a luxury, this, that can be bought and paid for and a receipt given. This love you have set yourself to share with some particular person is an obligation, a duty, a task and a difficult one that shall last your life long.

BETHHEL.

Mrs. John P. Brooks is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

Agnes Hutchins has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Caldwell at Oxford.

Mrs. A. M. Farwell of Brockton, Mass., has been visiting Mrs. S. J. French.

Augusta Hammond of Paris has been the guest of her cousin, Miss L. M. Stearns.

Evans Farwell, who has been teaching at Bethel, was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Alice Farwell.

The annual meeting of the Merrill, Springer Co. was held Tuesday and the old officers re-elected. The reports showed the company in excellent condition with good business.

George J. Haggood has removed from Portland, where he has been in business, to the Haggood farm in Bethel, where he will make his future home, having purchased the entire interest in the farm.

The annual meeting of the Bethel Hook and Ladder Co. was held Feb. 2d and the following officers elected in 1911: Foreman, Frank Flint; 1st Asst, Scott Robertson; 2d Asst, Fred Holt; Sec. and Treas., S. I. French. There has been but one alarm of fire in the village the past year and that did but little damage.

This Offer Should Gain the Confidence of the Most Skeptical.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you except our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is colorless, odorless and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause dizziness, nausea, flatulence, griping or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons. If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember you can get them in Norway only at our store, 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents.—The Rexall Store, F. P. Stone, Main Street.

Think This Over.

ATHERTON FURNITURE CO.

LEWISTON, MAINE

Good in Our Native Land.

Don C. Seitz of New York was the principal speaker at the second annual banquet of the Portland Relief Association at the Fairmont hotel last week.

As usual he made a rousing speech and spoke a good word for Norway.

He then referred to his experiences in trying to get the Portland paper in a Republican town, Norway.

Norway in a way was a good example for Portland. Some 35 years ago it was a sleepy old place filled with ideas banded down from 1812. But they built a shoe shop, woke up and went to work. And Portland is doing that same thing just now. (Laughter.)

He then said that he had an object in coming to Norway, for he was a heavy real estate owner and he might want to sell it some time at an advanced price.

For 100 years almost the motto of Maine has been I lead, but it had often been a question just where she is leading. His own view was that for a long time she was leading backward, but of late she has waked up, turned around and is now leading forward. In years past the bright and smart young people were lost to the booming west. Maine's only source of wealth were her navigable rivers and her great forests of pine. They cut the pine, sold it to the West Indies for rum, drank up the rum and then had nothing left. And it has taken a long time to get over that process.

There is up in the region bounded by the Grand Trunk railway on one side and the New Hampshire line on the other a triangle of land that is the most beautiful of any in the world. And it is not working the way it might. There are acres and acres of fertile land, and there are acres and acres suitable for apple orchards.

Two years ago a friend of Mr. Seitz who is an official in Iowa sent to his brother in Norway for some Oxford county apples to put into an apple pie. The brother went around and picked up 29 varieties getting them anyway he could and from anybody who had them, and without any attempt at selection or culling. The result was that the Maine apples took first prize in competition with Oregon, Arkansas and other great fruit raising sections. This ought to give the hint.

There is room for great advances in the apple industry and there is a vast area that could easily be turned into gold if it could be worked right. There is no friend like the apple tree which begins to bear at 12 years of age and keeps it up to 100. Out in California they pay a thousand dollars an acre for irrigated land. Up in Oxford county they have a lot of farms of 150 acres with the buildings all ready on them. These farms could easily be bought and run by men with money, who would get six or seven per cent on their investment which is good enough.

The great New York department stores are satisfied with five per cent. on their money, and there is almost no form of business that returns better than farming. It is not commonplace to talk about the fruits of the earth, for the great wealth of the country does not originate behind the counter in the stores. It comes in from the fields and farms first, and we can do no better stroke of business for ourselves than to get the ideas into the mind of the people in all parts of the State and have them go to the farms and by right lines of and scientific thought reap a harvest of dollars that will come to the retail dealers in the way of trade later on.

Mr. Seitz said many more things that were equally as good to hear and think on. The best thing about Mr. Seitz is he knows a good thing when he sees it, and he sees a good thing little things that a smaller minded man might overlook. He is a larger and better man than the town or people he lectures, and never can adjust his mind further than to compare the smaller institutions with the larger, to the detriment of the small r.

Green Food for Winter.

Sprouted oats have become quite popular of late years as a green winter food for laying hens, which they greatly relish.

The sprouting is usually done in cellars, where a heater or a stove fire is kept. The place must be warm. For the purpose, shallow flat boxes about two inches deep are used, and by sprinkling, the oats sprout very quickly.

Two large ornamental windows open into the vesting first and are to be placed in the front of the Universal church in this village. The church fronts on one of the principal streets and the change will be a great addition to the attractiveness of the edifice. Rev. J. H. Little, the pastor, obtained drawings of the windows and in a few hours secured subscriptions among his parishioners more than sufficient to pay for the windows which will cost $75 each. This society has made improvements on its church property for the past few years so that it is in excellent condition.

Breaks Up Cold.

Thousands are Using the New Method with Wonderful Results.

Cut out this prescription Madam: you are the one that must look after the health of the household, and you are the one in these days of high prices that must manage things economically.

Someone in the family may have a hard cold this winter; it may be in the head, perhaps in the chest.

It matters not where; Here is some advice and a prescription that will break up any cold in hours, and without taking harmful drugs or strong drinks into the stomach.

First of all, look after the bowels: The tongue will show whether the liver is right or not. If the bowels need attention, a good dose of castor oil made tasteless with a little orange juice will do the trick, although any reliable cathartic will do.

Then try this economical treatment: Into a bowl of boiling water pour a teaspoonful of HYOMER (pronounced High-o-me) cover both head and bowl with a towel, and breathe deep into the fumes the soothing, healing vapor.

Breathe this vapor for five or ten minutes and your head feels fine and clear, then go to bed and sleep soundly until morning.

A bottle of HYOMER costs cents at a drug store and drugists everywhere. A complete outfit which includes a hard rubber pocket inhaler with which you can breathe it any time or place, costs only $1.00. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds, sore throat and croup, or money back.

A New Temperance Doctrine.

For a number of years the promulgation of total abstinence through business demands has been an interesting feature of modern life. There are certain classes of employees, for example, who are never permitted to drink even when off duty, and keep their jobs. This is the rule on some railroads regarding engineers. Many owners of automobiles enforce a similar rule with chauffeurs. These are extreme cases.

A common rule in business, however, forbids the use of alcohol while one is on duty or constructively on duty. A noteworthy example of this is the change in the habits of ocean steamship captains who used to drink openly with the passengers and who now seldom drink even at table.

It is said to be the rule on some lines that ocean captains shall not drink at all during a prolonged storm or fog. The reason for such a rule as this is that one can never tell when one drink will lead to another and thus befuddle the brain at the time of an emergency.

But there is a new temperance doctrine that alcohol even in the smallest degree impairs efficiency. This new doctrine emanates from those who make a special study of diet and its effects. While it has been generally conceded scientifically that alcohol is a food, nevertheless, it is a food of such rare utility as to be in scientific terms almost negligible in value. These diet specialists maintain that even a small amount of alcohol does clog the physical powers and does decrease efficiency.

On such authority gave an unusual example in private conversation not long ago. He said that his brother and wife in old days of the popularity of bicycling used to take many tandem trips. They were accustomed to stop at a roadside at some wayside inn and indulge in a glass of beer each. After leaving the inn each would complain to the other that the other was not doing the proper share of the tandem work; each thought the other was loafing on his job. This never occurred when a temperance drink was substituted for beer, and yet beer has about the smallest per cent. of alcohol in it of any so-called alcoholic drinks.

This example may be regarded as absurd by many scientific men and doctors. But in the opinion of these diet authorities such scientific men and doctors influenced in their judgment by their own liking for indulgence in alcoholics. These diet specialists believe that the efficient man of the future will not take a drop of alcohol except as a medicine, not on moral grounds, but that he may make the most of himself, may be fittest to do the greatest amount of work in his life possible to him. Such a doctrine may be an exaggeration, but it is likely to have more influence on the future than many people at present think.

William Henry Clifton Noble.

William Henry Clifton Noble of Ipswich, Mass., died at the State Hospital, Westboro, Mass., on Sunday, January 15.

Mr. Noble was a native of Oxford and was born on April 11, 1837, being the son of Charles S. and Columbia (Perkins) Noble. When he was 10 years of age, he went to Boston to live with a maternal aunt there, Clara Perkins, by whom he was reared, and with whom he continued to live until his marriage. He was educated in Boston's public schools, and afterwards attended the Boston University Law School, from which institution he was graduated in the class of 1901.

Upon thereafter opening an office in Boston for the practice of his profession, he in the early part of the year 1904, symptoms of a mental ailment which at first appeared like nervous prostration, but which did not at all yield to the usual treatment for such a malady, began to develop. It is difficult to describe the time into a pronounced mania, not violent, but, it was feared, incurable.

On December 3, 1908, only a short time before this mental ailment began to manifest itself, he married Fannie W. Jordan of Ipswich, and everything seemed to portend a bright and prosperous future for the happy couple. When the shadow fell, none thought that the gloom which it brought would be so lasting, but the shadow never lifted, and in December, 1904, the malady which had then been diagnosed as paralytic had become so serious that he was obliged to close his office and give up his business. After he had taken a prolonged rest, however, his health had so much improved that he reopened his office and resumed the practice of his profession. Ere long, however, his health again gave way, and he was compelled to close his office and give up his business. Finally—gave up business. Mrs. Noble, retaining the position of stenographer with a law firm on State street, Boston, which she had relinquished upon her marriage, retained the pretty home which the couple had fitted up in Dorchester and for six years exemplified what a woman of indomitable courage, energy and perseverance can do in battling against and overcoming disappointments and difficulties calculated to appal the stoutest heart.

Late last autumn Mrs. Noble with her husband and the sister to Mrs. Noble who had made her home with them in Dorchester, and upon whom the care of Mr. Noble had largely devolved, returned to the Jordan homestead in Ipswich. A few days later, the last ray of hope that Mr. Noble would ever recover, having been abandoned, he was removed to the above-mentioned State Hospital at Westboro, the removal being made on Sunday, December 4. He failed very rapidly after his removal to the hospital, and, as already stated, died there on Sunday, January 15, 1911, being just six weeks after his removal to the hospital.

The deceased was a member of the Masonic order, of the Boston Light Infantry, and of the J. C. Wellington Camp No. 14 of the Sons of Veterans, N. H. bridge, Mass., of which camp he was one of the organizers. Besides his wife, he is survived by his father, who resides in Paris; and by two sisters, Mrs. David Knight of West Somerville, Mass., and Mrs. Oscar King of Oxford, N. H. The remains were removed from Westboro to the late home of the deceased at Ipswich and there the funeral was held on January 18, interment being in the Jordan family lot in the cemetery in that town.

Mr. Noble gave to the funeral the principles of the law with rare intuition, and, having a pleasing personality and an unusual cordiality of manner, he could not have failed, had his life been spared, to attain notable success in his profession. To his many friends it is the source of the deepest sorrow that career which opened so auspiciously, should thus early have been brought to its close.

One peculiarity of Doc. Cook's memory is that every time he stops to think he remembers something he never before knew he had forgotten.

OXFORD.

Almon Crooker.
Died in Oxford Jan. 29, Almon Crooker, aged 72 years. Mr. Crooker was a kind friend and genial neighbor and a brave soldier.

His genuine kindness of heart responded promptly to the call of a stranger, friend and comrade. He waited for no draft neither hired a substitute but was one of the first who responded to "Lincoln's call for volunteers." When his time expired he re-enlisted and rose to the rank of lieutenant in those dark days that tired men's souls.

He is survived by a widow, Rose Snell Crooker, who married him on the eve of his second enlistment in the 60's.

Two new telephones were installed in this exchange last week:
Walter A. Wood, 1514-1514-1614.
Rev. C. C. Eaton, Cong. parsonage, 9-2.

The Oxford exchange was installed five years ago with 62 subscribers, there are now 89.

The funeral of Mrs. Evelyn H. Hewey, whose death occurred at Oxford, was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Caroline L. Thompson, at Lewiston, Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 9. Rev. E. E. Conner officiated and interment was made at Mt. Auburn.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

ONE of the indispensable qualifications of a husband is that he shall be able to hook up a new gown with neatness and dispatch after having hooked up the wherewithal to procure it.

Be good to yourself and so set an example for other good folk.

Be game, but always remember that there is a time to be game and a time to strike your colors gracefully.

Beat your troubles bravely, man, if you haven't got the means to hire a four dollar clerk to bear them for you.

Have a hobby, by all means, but don't keep it till its whiskers get so long that they step on them when you mount it.

Perhaps the disagreeableness of eight drafts is the reason why many people have developed a repugnance to drafts.

It takes a man at least two score years to get wise, and a woman can generally make a fool of him in twenty minutes.

People who make a specialty of having gentlemen of their own often manage to generate some of their associates.

Working at Its Trade.
Summer's here in all its grandeur, all its beauty, all its heat.

Spreading sunshine like molasses. Over all the dusty street, melting collars that were lately very white and fresh and pure.

Raising sweat upon the wealthy and the faces of the poor.

Ever it loomed upon the landscape like a bakeshop overdone. We were sure it was the only cherished and anointed one.

In our bones we felt that never could a season be too hot. And that summer would be certain every day to touch the spot.

Now we have it as our steady. Stopping with us all the while. And at times we pause to wonder if we really like its style.

If for it with more affection. Hearts would not in rapture throbb if the thing were not so very conscientious on the job.

But since summer is in season. We must make the best of it. Though at times we almost wonder if it isn't a misfit.

It would surely be a beauty. Like a shirt waist ready made. If it wasn't so persistent.

In the working at its trade.

Of Course.
"Do you have any idea of how much money your wife spends?"

"My wife?"

"I certainly have."

"How much?"

"Every cent she gets."

Hard Swearer.

"Our sheriff is an awfully profane man, mamma."

"The sheriff?"

"Yes."

"What makes you think so?"

"Cause papa said he swore in every one of his deputies."

Explained.

"Father said it is the little things that count."

"Yes."

"The children in the kindergarten probably."

How He Takes Them.

"Does your husband take his meals with relish, my good woman?"

"With relish?"

"Yes."

"Now, he mostly takes them with beer."

The Reason.

"Why do some quiet women look so tired?"

"It wears them so."

"What does?"

"Holding their tongues."

Do Less.

"He is always going to do something great."

"Yes, always going."

"And I notice that for all of his going he never arrives."

A Slip.

"He is a United States senator."

"What legislature did he buy?"

"I don't understand you."

"Beg pardon! What state does he come from?"

They Stay There.

"That fishes as large in the sea there may be."

"As ever were caught is quite right. But it is, as fishermen all must agree, Some trouble to get them to bite."

Probably.

"Why wait till a man is dead before speaking good of him?"

"To preserve him from a swelled head."

Pure sugar burns up clean, the adulterated article leaves an ash. Simple way to tell what is being sold you.

The Scrap Book

It Sounded Dangerous.

Thomas Gaffney, Democrat, and William Mulligan, Republican, were disputing in a New York burrow before the municipal election over the merits of Judge Gaynor. Gaffney had made an oratorical detour for the purpose of paying tribute to the memory of Patrick H. McCarren and had just come back to the main issue. "Anyway," he declared and thumped the bar, "Gaynor will be elected the next mayor of New York."

"He won't," replied Mulligan. "He's as good as out of the race now. There's too much ego in his cosmos." Gaffney solemnly set down his glass. "Has he been told?" he asked.

"Sure," said Mulligan. "I'm sorry to hear that," replied Gaffney, "but if he'll take my advice he'll not go on the operating table. He'll stay away from the doctors and take his chances of living to fill out his term."

"I'm sorry to hear that," replied Gaffney, "but if he'll take my advice he'll not go on the operating table. He'll stay away from the doctors and take his chances of living to fill out his term."

READY TO TALK.

But Lecky Knew How to Choke Off His Opponent.

A very brilliant Irish lady some years ago arranged that Mr. Lecky should meet an able and famous Irishman of very advanced opinions in politics. It was intended that they should exchange views, and the Irishman had a good deal to say about Mr. Lecky's later work and was well able to put what he had to say in the most effective language. The door opened, and Mr. Lecky was announced. He was introduced to the Irishman, and before the latter had time to say anything the historian began a political harangue which he kept going without cessation the whole time he was there. The Irishman at first tried to break in with a word, but he was swept away, as it were, in the unceasing flow of Mr. Lecky's language, so after a time he sat in amused bewilderment, waiting until nature gave out. But when Mr. Lecky felt he was getting exhausted he rose from his chair and shook hands with the hostess and her guest, keeping on talking all the time. They came out with him to the top of the staircase, but could not get a word in edgewise even then, as he talked all the way down to the door and was even in an unfinished sentence when the door was shut behind him. They looked at each other and roared.

"I'm sorry to hear that," replied Gaffney, "but if he'll take my advice he'll not go on the operating table. He'll stay away from the doctors and take his chances of living to fill out his term."

"I'm sorry to hear that," replied Gaffney, "but if he'll take my advice he'll not go on the operating table. He'll stay away from the doctors and take his chances of living to fill out his term."

A Woman's Solution

By JANE PINCKNEY BENNETT
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Please consider our engagement broken," she snapped.
"Have you considered it broken?"
"What do you mean?"
"I mean have you thought over the consequences of a broken engagement between us? We have been engaged for a month; all our friends know that we are lovers."
"Were lovers."
"Supposed to be lovers."
"That's more like it."
"Now suppose we announce that all is off between us. People will naturally be curious to know the reason."
"It is none of their business."
"But they will make it their business."
"I shall tell them that I have been very much disappointed in you."
"And what shall I say about it?"
"What you like."
"I shall say I discovered that I am unworthy of a girl with so much amiability."
"There was no reply to this.
"What is to be considered in the matter is whether you contemplate renewing our engagement after it has once been broken."
"Never."
"Very well; so far so good. In that case I am free to engage myself to whosoever I please."
"And it is my privilege to do the same."

Joshua Libby went to Baldwin on business, Tuesday. He had a cold, day of it.
Mrs. Albert Holmes was bitten by their dog bad, last week. The dog was killed at once.
Wm. Cotton of Waterboro was in this vicinity Wednesday, making calls and visiting the sick.
Forrest Eastman has been confined to the house with pneumonia the past week, but is better at this writing.
Ernest Nelson of Ellingsham, N. H., is stopping at Mr. Farrar's, hauling boards to Cornish station. He lost one of his horses, Monday, a horse of value.
Rev. W. H. Cotton of Waterboro held meetings through the past week at the village schoolhouse. Wednesday evening, Rev. Fred Ward of Baldwin and Rev. James Perry of Cornish, were present.

GREENWOOD.
George Cole was called to Portland, Saturday, on business.
Louise Cole is quite ill, threatened with pneumonia report has it. She has been in rather poor health for several months.
W. O. Emmors has installed new machinery in his brick mill and begun operation for the winter. Tuesday of last week, with a crew of nine men.
Those who have been grumbling on account of the lack of snow this winter are respectfully requested to grumble no more, or find something new in the order or things to vent their displeasure about.
Word received from Bryant's Pond at this writing is to the effect that Frank Morgan, whose home is in this place, is confined to the house with a abscess of the head. Annie, wife of Floyd Morgan, is also sick, and Mrs. E. H. Morgan went on Sunday to care for both of them.
In spite of the bad traveling our local church had a good audience in attendance Sunday, to hear a most interesting and eloquent sermon by the presiding elder of the Western Maine district. The new pastor at West Paris, Mr. Southard, who supplies Greenwood, was here also for the first time.
Invitations had been out for some time for the marriage reception of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Bennett which was to take place at Cole's hall, but owing to the weather last Saturday, the day set, the affair is postponed until Sunday, February 11th. A cordial invitation is extended to all the young people's friends to be present on that date.
Upon good authority we have it that during the cold weather recently, Frank Elwell had the hair frozen to her head between times of washing up for breakfast and getting to care for both of them.
That important meal, and as he was in a hurry, he figures the freezing up process occupied about thirty seconds by the clock. Applications of hot water was necessary to thaw out his hair. Can anyone beat this for a cold weather story?

Abbie Hayes is on the sick list.
Louise Cole is quite sick at this writing.
Alva Estes was in Norway, Monday, on business.

CASCO.

Buildings Caught Fire.
The buildings of Frank Morse caught fire Saturday from some bedding that was left to dry near it. The stove was in an upper room and all the family happened to be down stairs at the time; some of the bedding was near enough to drop onto the stove and caught fire. The smoke was so thick that it was impossible to get into the room.
Howard Fickett was helped on to the roof, where he broke in a window and threw snow into the room. This made the smoke lift enough so they could see to work.
Luckily, they had a telephone and in a few minutes the neighbors soon gathered around, ready to put out the fire. The damage was very slight; a little bedding was burned, one window was broken, and the upper part of the house was badly smoked up.

Thus reads the record, but this gives little idea of the wild scenes in the basketball game Thursday night at Norway Opera House. The Bryant & Ponds were advertised to play the Norway Regulars, but at the "ninth hour" the North Bridgton took their place. The audience "panted to the music of Stearns' orchestra while awaiting the arrival of the North Bridgtons.

The Norway Regulars are rather a light weight team when the North Bridgtons walked into the arena they looked like young giants. Even then the novice thought perhaps the science in this game would even up the physical difference between the teams.

Rough work predominated and at times it would have taken an expert to have told whether it was a basketball game or a prize fight. It was a wonder that the Norway scored as much as they did, they were so overshadowed by the heavier team. Many of them were head and shoulders taller and twice as broad. The Norway looked almost helpless in their hands, but they put up a good game against fearful odds.

Occasionally one would receive a more severe blow or fall that would arrest their career but with the help of friends they would come to and on went the game. Apparently no bones were broken, but there were wounds and bruises galore. Either of these teams pitted against other teams of equal weight and skill must put up a pretty game.

Swing Signs.
The Advertiser has received a marked clipping from Philadelphia:—"A heavy sign over the sidewalk in front of a shoe store on Market street, near Ninth, one of the busiest sections of the shopping district, fell this afternoon, killing three persons outright and injuring four others. The street was thronged with pedestrians and a pile ensued, a score of police being called to quell it." Evidently the one who sent it has heard the good news that Norway has no swing signs over the sidewalks or public streets.

Norway has three dangerous swing signs over private land used as a public thoroughfare. Can the owners afford to take the risk? One of these signs blew down last summer in a gale, but fortunately did not hit anyone or do other damage.

Churches Need Business Management.

Don C. Seitz of the World Applies Village Lessons to Brooklyn Situation.

We quote further from the speech before the Universalist club at Brooklyn, to which were about forty men representing the Universalist churches in the Metropolitan district.

The little Maine town of Norway half a century ago, had two churches, one a Universalist and the other a Congregational. More than a third of the townspeople were church-going individuals. Along came an enterprising Methodist minister. The town savings bank was accommodated, and a Methodist church went up. Presently two or three women and a few men in the town started a new movement and a Baptist church was organized. Then a hotel landlady started an Episcopal church, while the later several French Canadian in town were visited by a priest and a Catholic parish was founded. For a long time the Adventists have used the G. A. R. hall for services.

By this time the third of the townspeople who went to church or church services, were divided in their denominational faith. There were six churches in the town of two. There six there today.

Don C. Seitz, now business manager of The World, was a minister's son in Norway at that time. Last night Mr. Seitz, speaking at the one hundred and fourth meeting of the Universalist Club, told of the church conditions in the town where his boyhood was spent. There ought to be but those two original churches in Norway today, he said, to stand for moral forces and right living in town. As it is with six churches there, they are starving.

It is the same the country over, Mr. Seitz said, not only in village, but in city, and it is true today in Brooklyn. Poor business management in the church is responsible, he said, and that is the reason familiar with the history of the Universalist church in Brooklyn since 1870, and he stated at the meeting last night that it was a melancholy story.

The successful business, Mr. Seitz said, in beginning, does not always have capital to make it go, but it must have good business management; and that is the business management; and that is the way with the church. The Universalist church once was a factor in this city and its vanishing is due not to decadence in liberal faith, but to poor business management. Where good business management has prevailed the church has thrived, and Mr. Seitz pointed to All Souls church as an example, for it moved from a decadent church neighborhood to a section where the population was growing; sentiment was set aside, and therein church officers showed good business sense.

Mr. Seitz said that the Catholic church flourishes as it goes along, since it builds geographically, the officers studying to learn where the Catholic people are, and building accordingly, "with the fine missionary sense that belongs to the Catholic church." Instead of erecting in the poorest neighborhoods where the wealthiest people live, the Catholic locate in poor neighborhoods where the poor people of their denomination live.

Mr. Seitz then described church conditions in the Maine town, a fair example, he said, of poor business management that obtains all over the country. This doesn't work for good religion, good morals or good sense.

The speaker deplored the coming of "money bags" into the church. A wealthy man with social ambition often seeks to exert his personality through opening his pocket book; other leaders in support of the church feel relieved and they walk toward the door." Their pews are emptied. The moneyed individual with the dominating personality continues to loosen his purse strings and is elected one of the trustees, and by the "money bag" begins to run the church and other men step aside and more pews are emptied. But presently the "money bags" tire at the lack of interest shown by the former leaders, and they too step aside, and the church is wrecked. Democracy should rule in the business judgment of the church, said Mr. Seitz, the money man should not be welcomed so eagerly.

At the end of Mr. Seitz talk, Mr. Potterton invited discussion and questioning, and he called upon Herbert F. Gunnison, another Norway man, to speak. Mr. Gunnison is a son of a minister of the same little Norway church of which Mr. Seitz's father was pastor. Mr. Gunnison's father was the first president of the Norway Savings bank and his portrait now has a conspicuous place on the bank's walls.

Mr. Gunnison began by saying that he considered Mr. Seitz one of the best business men in the country today. It was true, he said, that there was a depression, a stagnation today in the Universalist church, but there was not less loyalty and efficiency shown by men of this denomination than by those of other churches.

Mr. Gunnison was a minister's son in Norway at the time that Mr. Seitz was a boy there. He recalled Norway's church history, and said that Brooklyn was much the same today as Norway. A large operation among the different denominations must be had to accomplish things, he said, and he felt that the churches were getting more sensible in this respect. He urged that the Universalist church take the Christian Science lesson to heart, for in that denomination the people feel that they have received something from their church, and they are willing to give in return. "Study and work out our salvation on this line," Mr. Gunnison said, "and in doing this the minister must do his share, and for his share the pastor should receive a larger salary."

NEWRY.

Mrs. A. H. Powers is gaining slowly. Mrs. Marcia Evans from New London, Conn., visited in town last week.

Loe L. Fowler from Los Angeles, Cal., visited his cousin, A. H. Powers, last week. Eighteen inches of snow fell here Saturday, and road breaking seems to be the order of the day now. Tuesday it is snowing and it looks as though there might be as much more snow.

"When a woman is born in Maine there is no knowing how many strange pies she will eat before her fingers are set," says the Brooklyn Eagle. It may be set down as a fact, however, that any pie with which a Maine born woman has anything to do is more to the purpose than that for which any other woman is in any way responsible.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband took him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could tell every suffering woman and girl."

Mrs. DUEA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo. / The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

The Winter Hen.

"When Charlie saw what came to call."

We always have a hen of us should know, that winter hens are divided into two classes, those that lay and those that do not lay, even if you feed them on patent concoctions that cost more to buy than the resultant egg is worth at the store. For the country store is the true standard for egg quotations, because if a farmer who is a mere producer of eggs should ever aspire to lofty flights, such as becoming a merchant and selling direct to the consumer. Let everybody stick to his calling, say we, and if he were born to be a clerk of the field, it costs more than the education is worth to get out of the old ruts.

It becomes obvious then that the winter hen, which will not lay eggs must become fat from over eating, and as eggs never more start—even under feeding on cayenne pepper—take to hatching the new laying winter hen is sacrificed to the bakers, or the stew kettle the better it is for the hen and for the proprietor of the hen.

There is no soul or divinity in the modern hen business, as it is conducted here in Maine, in a modern hen house, longer can the red combed and jound mother of a family spend half a day scratching among the rank burdocks behind the barn. No more shall she uproot the newly planted peas of spring or dig the pink early potatoes of July. She never more firmly brand to the river or spend two delightful weeks from over egg production while resting free of cost at the Hersey Retreat.

If the new hen with all the modern attachments were put through a course in the Shorter Catechism and asked regarding what was the first duty of a hen, the answer must be:

"To lay as many eggs as possible when eggs are high, and then to perish a 40 cents a pound at the behest of the sumner boarder."

Look at the subject in any light you will, and there seems no other way out of it—for a hen. It is eat more and "driving" foods, to lay more eggs, to earn more money so as to buy a food for the laying of more eggs, for the buying of more food. No Roman slave was ever more firmly brand to the galley oar than the latest kind of a hen into the all important Egg Record. The idea has become an obsession to all hens, to many roosters and to more human beings than one cares to contemplate with cold indifference.

At the pathos and poetry and profit of growing hens, Mr. Seitz, who was within that famous old jingle which declared:

"My old hen with yellow legs,
She laid her master many eggs,
Gave him a new every day,
To buy what my old hen does lay."

While she continues to produce eggs, she is a jewel, a treasure, a pearl beyond price, an almsman, a gold mine! But as soon as the egg bow is shut off her dear old neck is twisted off and the shivering carcass is sent to the kitchen, where she is sold as a "broiled live" for 75 cents "per,"—two "pers"—with feathers and gizzard making up a whole chicken.

From natural inclination the hen is a cheerful animal with a soul attuned to sweet that enters into a hen's life. She would burrow in the sunny bank of a choice flower bed forever and become a tame and companionable. Never having heard anybody out her own rooster caw to hail the advent of dawn she is willing to swear that her own rooster is a better singer than Patti or any other famous singer. Such was her intention, and she was not until she became enthusiastic with the spirit of commercialism.

All is changed now since the egg makers taken her in hard, and she is compelled to enter the tomb like enclosure of the trap once every day. She passes under the fatal wire spring, and hears the deadly guillotine fall behind her. She knows her duty, and must perform it in full, or else the order goes forth to sacrifice her to the summer boarder.

And still there are good and Christian people right here in our midst who think they would like to be "hens!"—Bangor News.

HANOVER.

Mildred Dyer is suffering from an attack of erysipelas.

Rev. J. H. Little of Bethel was the guest of J. B. Roberts and family last Thursday.

Etta M. Howe, our music teacher, has recently added to her other class at South Rumford.

Mrs. Lucy Folsom of Milan, N. H., and granddaughter, Norma Frost of South Framingham, Mass., are visiting relatives.

Both schools closed Friday after very successful terms, taught by Linda Heywood of Skowhegan and George Smith of Hanover.

Helen M. Staples, who spent the early part of the winter with friends at North Bethel, is now with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Will Howe of Waltham, Mass.

A most enjoyable and successful affair was the installation of officers of Mishem, kwa Temple, No. 48, Pythian Sisters, which was held Friday evening, Jan. 27. A large company of sisters, members of Oxford Bear lodge, K. of P., and other guests were present.

The following officers were installed by D. D. G. C. Mrs. Alice E. B. Staples, assisted by Mrs. Etta A. Smith as G. S. and Mrs. Ada Hutchins as G. M. C.

P. C.—Mrs. Helen R. Barker.
M. E. C.—Mrs. Tavia Dean.
E. S.—Mrs. Eva Hayford.
E. J.—Mrs. Amy Hopkins.
M. of R. & C.—Etta M. Howe.
M. of F.—Mrs. Emma Barker.
P. G.—Georgia Abbott.

A military drill was presented by 16 ladies in a most creditable manner, calling forth much applause from the spectators. Following the installation, a delicious supper of oysters, salad, coffee and fruit was served. Dancing was enjoyed during the latter part of the evening.

LOCKE'S MILLS.

Bert Goodwin was in Bethel, Saturday. Mrs. James Crooker is visiting relatives in Portland.

C. R. Bartlett went to Berlin, N. H., on business, Monday.

Vesta Woodis is spending a few weeks in Lewiston, with her sister.

The Misses Eva and Blanche Bryant are visiting their uncle, Othonald Bryant in Lewiston.

The many friends of Fred Bubier, who recently had his leg amputated, are pleased to learn that he is recovering.

Mrs. Frank Cummings was in Lewiston, Saturday to see her sister, Mrs. Will Beah, who is in the C. M. G. Hospital after an operation for appendicitis.

Arthur J. Stevens is the newly commissioned postmaster at South Andover.

Abraham Lincoln.

It has been with some difficulty that the ancestry of Abraham Lincoln has been traced back to Samuel Lincoln of Norwich, England, who came to America in 1638 and located at Hingham, Mass. His descendants, who were Quakers, settled in Amity Township, N. J., and finally in Rockingham County in Virginia.

Abraham Lincoln, President Lincoln's grandfather, came from Virginia to offer to Kentucky, and located on the south side of Licking Creek under a government warrant, and built his log cabin, where he and his family, of five children made their home.

Abraham Lincoln was the son of Thomas and Nancy (Hanks) Lincoln and was born in Hardin County, Kentucky, Feb. 12, 1809. His father was a carpenter by trade and was considered ignorant and thriftless but his mother was a woman of noble character.

In 1816 the family moved to Indiana, where his mother died two years later. When he was not quite eight years of age. He was exceptionally ambitious from the very outset and although he never had over a year's schooling tried exceedingly hard to learn and obtain an education. Among the books which he had access to and which he thoroughly mastered were the Bible, Shakespeare, Zoro's Fables, Robinson's Crusoe, Pilgrim's Progress, a history of the United States and Weems's Washington.

When about 21 years of age his father moved to Illinois and they settled on the north fork of the Sangamon, which empties into the Ohio river. Here he began clearing and aiding his father about the rude farm which they were carrying on.

Some years after moving to Illinois he made a trip down the river on a flat bottomed boat to New Orleans and a little later made the second trip. On these trips, through the kindness of a friend, he had an excellent opportunity to study into the slave trade and he saw the true nature of slavery.

In 1832 after serving as a volunteer, he was chosen captain of a company of volunteers for service in the Black Hawk War. He afterwards returned to Sangamon and made his abode in the little mushroom town of New Salem.

Throughout all these years he had been keeping in touch with the current events of the day and with his keen intellect had thoroughly understood the situation regarding the country's welfare.

After announcing his candidacy for the State legislature he began electioneering with great humor and energy, but in this was defeated. His next venture was as partner in a dry goods and grocery store at New Salem, but this enterprise failed. The other partner fled and he was left to settle all accounts which after a few years he had paid.

In 1833 he was appointed postmaster of New Salem, which position he held for three years. During this time he began to read law, studied hard, made swift progress, and in 1834 he was elected to the legislature.

His first love affair proved to be an unhappy one. Ann Rutledge, the daughter of the landlord where he boarded, was the girl of his choice but she was spoken for by another who had promised to marry her but he broke his word. In 1835 she married Mr. Lincoln and in August was taken ill and died of brain fever.

In 1839 he moved to Springfield, and was at this time a member of the legislature. Having opened a law office at Springfield he attended to his law practice and his duties in the legislature. His business grew rapidly and he formed a partnership with John T. Stuart and became the minor partner.

On November 4, 1840, occurred the marriage of Lincoln to Mary Todd, the daughter of Hon. Robert S. Todd of Springfield, which proved to be an exceedingly happy marriage and was always as some people call "an old-fashioned couple, content with each other, a devoted husband and wife to the end of their life together."

When his term in Congress expired he held no prominent place but was engaged in delivering speeches in many cities and towns, at the conventions and the different political meetings, taking advanced anti-slavery ground, and he became more and more talked of by the entire people for the president nomination, and he finally consented and authorized his friends to work for him.

He received the election and on the 11th of February, 1861, left for Washington and on the fourth of March was inaugurated. His inaugural speech was one of the best and was filled with the best qualities of his nature. In this speech he denied the right of any state to go out of the Union. The South began to make preparations, while the North strongly approved of Lincoln's idea regarding the secession of states and firmly supported him. In less than six weeks Fort Sumter was bombarded by the Confederate government and the Civil War was begun.

It was with a sense of great anxiety and responsibility that Lincoln entered upon the duties of his office. He was confronted by a threatening war, Union divided and the cause of slavery resting on the nation. It was his utmost desire that the Union, the Constitution, and the liberties of the people should be allowed to continue in accordance with the original idea for which the struggle had been made, and would be exceedingly happy if he should be the humble instrument in the hands of God to help perpetuate the object of the struggle.

Throughout the war he proved to be the man rightly fitted for the position which he held, an excellent leader of the people, a good statesman, and a man of firm convictions and one loved and honored by the people.

On Nov. 8, 1864, Lincoln was again elected President of the United States. With the surrender of Lee on the 9th of April, 1865, the war drew to a close after four years' hard struggle.

The President was busy with plans for reconstruction of the Union but before he could do anything toward utilizing his wisdom in reorganization he was shot on the evening of April 14th at the Ford Theatre, where he and a party of friends went on invitation, by John Wilkes Booth, a disreputable and fanatical actor. He never regained consciousness and died the next morning at seven o'clock.

Lincoln's most marked characteristic was the accuracy with which he understood the American people. He was thoroughly honest and his integrity is so far reaching that he received the name of "Honest Abe," and is known by this name in every part of the country.

As a lawyer he was weak unless convinced of the right in his case. He was a friend to everybody whether white or black, high or low, and he had no difference. He was a firm believer in Christianity and through the power of truth he was a conqueror. His memory has become indelibly stamped upon the people of America and stands as one of the greatest men in the history of the United States, as a "ship of State" safely through a storm of war and peril. His speeches are an undying memorial to his memory and the most beautiful of all, "The Speech at Gettysburg" and "The Emancipation Proclamation," ever live and always will be a living monument to the memory of our martyred President.

Candlemas day was anything but fair and bright this year and if there is any virtue in the sun not shining there will be little more winter weather this year.

Winter Life of Wild Creatures.

To keep alive during the Northern winters, living creatures need shelter and food. How animals make use of their senses and instincts to guide them and with nothing but the organs of their own bodies for tools to wrest a living from stern Mother Nature during winter forms a most fascinating chapter in natural history.

Bears, badgers, raccoons and skunks have a simple way; they close up shop, so to speak, and go to sleep until Mother Nature is over her annual spell of sternness. None of the four is a swift hunter or runner, but they rather incline toward a certain aldermanic ease, which seems to fit their physique and their station in the wild life of forest or field.

Generally nature provides liberally for this quartet. Almost everything is food for one or all of them. Berries, nuts and corn, frogs, young birds, roots, insects and worms, gophers and mice, even carrion when nothing better can be found. As a result of liberal feeding and a quiet, untroubled life, they grow very fat in fall, and when the snow begins to freeze hard and digging and nosing around after food no longer pays, they just retire for a nap of several months.

The bear curls up under a root or log or under a small natural earth, and a blanket of snow soon completes his shelter. The raccoon finds a hollow tree, while badgers and skunks retire into burrows they have dug into the ground. Now the stores must be blown and the four sleepers no longer care for the wrapped in a heavy coat of fat and a liberal store of fat furnishes food and fuel for their bodies. The fires of life are banked and burn low, and who will stir the winter sleepers have not his upon, at least, as successful a successful solution of a difficult problem as any of their more active competitors of field, marsh or forest?

Many Others Sleep Away Long Winter. Indeed, we might easily increase this list of four to the legendary seven or any greater number. Woodchucks, gophers and chipmunks also sleep away the long winter in burrows. If it is not an accident befalls them, such as untimely floods, the tracks of all these winter sleepers will again be seen when the birds return north and the buds begin to swell.

A large number of the wild do not hibernate. Wolf, fox and panther, lynx and wildcat, mink, weasel, marten and fisher now follow their hunting trails with even more keenness than during the time of abundance of summer. They have no fixed territory as well as a boy knows his grandfather's orchard, and they can always find shelter in storms, and generally they find enough food to bring them safely through, though gaunt and hungry they may be, when at last spring again unlocks the great storehouse of nature.

These active, flesh-eating hunters could give most of us lessons in fasting; they eat when meat is plentiful and fast when it is none. Most of them can probably fast a week without special hardship. If a wolf gets one full meal a week he will come through the winter strong and in good condition.

But where hunters can live there must be those that are hunted, and these there are fish enters there must be those that change grass into flesh for them. It is true that a large number of the peaceful folk nature do not go to sleep with the groundhog and the gopher.

Rabbits' Life Uncertain.
Moose, elk and deer find browse and grass all winter, if the snowfall is not too heavy.

Squirrels, rabbits and wood mice also find their food by digging the year round and it is principally the timid rabbit and the legions of wild mice whose meat feeds wolf and fox, lynx and wildcat, as well as a host of smaller hunters. The snowshoe rabbit of the Northern woods is generally amazingly numerous for several years, then a plague carries them off by thousands, so that for a year or two one may follow the forest trail without seeing a rabbit. During these years the lynxes also go suddenly scarce. The explanation is that the lynxes die of starvation when the rabbits die of the plague. This is nature's way of winnowing out all but the very strongest of limbs and the most keen of senses and intelligence.

Not a few wild creatures have learned the wisdom of lying in store for rainy day, or rather for snowy and stormy days. The mink collects in some burrow or hollow as much as a bushel of frozen game, consisting of ducks and birds, muskrats, mice and rabbits. Squirrels store their nuts and acorns and evergreen twigs with buds on them. On jobe winter scouting trip I found a mass of linden twigs stored away in a hollow tree. It was evident that no human hand had placed them there, and the mink's storehouse showed plainly I had found the emergence cache of red or gray squirrel.

True Conservationists.
The wild mice store up many kinds of seeds: Once while accidentally digging into a deserted mouse burrow, I found a handful of small stony nutlets, which had all been cracked by some little mouse years ago. It took me several days to identify the seeds, when suddenly as I passed through my mind seed after seed that I knew, it flashed upon me that they were the stone seeds of the bladder nut, a shrub which grows profusely in the pieces of woodland where I had been scouting around during the day.

The distribution of the seeds of the bladder nut bush has been a riddle to me for many years, and it is a bit of wonder to find it in store for winter. The harder it freezes the more it snows, the warmer and safer is the muskrat's house. Lakes and rivers become icebound, but the muskrats live happy and content unless some ornerly trapper cuts into their domain or drives his long-tailed spear through its roof.

Hunt for Food Under Ice.
They are not asleep, but under the ice they swim and dive for their food of roots and bulbs. They have small eating and breathing houses scattered over the marsh. They also have holes in the banks and they know all places of open water in the neighborhood.

Occasionally, however, I think a muskrat gets lost and suffocated under the ice. In the winter of 1908 I found a dead muskrat under the ice in Lake Minnetonka. As near as I could determine he was suffocated in trying to swim from one island to another. A friend of mine, who is a first class nature scout, claims that a muskrat swimming under the ice often exhales a few bubbles of air, and after waiting a few seconds for the refreshing of the air, again inhales the same air and pursues its way. I have not personally observed this point, and it would be a good question for boys to investigate.

Muskkrats do not generally lay up large stores, but I have found a quail of sedge bulbs in their houses. Compared with the humble clam of the muskrat, the beaver's winter home is a grand dual manor. His house would occupy the floor space of an ordinary human living room, having by fifteen feet in area. The one large room for the beaver family measures about five feet long, three feet wide and two feet high. The cavity is large enough for a man to slide in, as I know by actually trying it. This animal manor is built of sticks and mud, and after frost has converted the soft mud into solid mortar the beaver can truly say, "My house is my castle." The entrances to this castle are placed under water, just as in the muskrat's cabin.

Beavers Store Up Winter Supplies.
Beavers live principally on the bark and twigs of poplar and other trees, but in winter, when the trees are dead and frozen, they eat the bark and twigs of poplar and other trees, but in winter, when the trees are dead and frozen, they eat the bark and twigs of poplar and other trees, but in winter, when the trees are dead and frozen, they eat the bark and twigs of poplar and other trees.

The most unique way of passing the winter has been hit upon by the bat. These innocent and useful creatures are true mammals, like cattle, dogs and a new-born bat feeds on its mother's milk just as lambs and kittens are fed. The adults feed on insects, which they hunt on the wing after the manner of swallows. There are no insects to hunt in winter, so there is nothing for them to do but sleep, and that is what our northern bats do all winter. However, they use no bed or nest, not even a perch. They hang themselves up by their feet, and in this position await the call of spring. In caves, in hollow trees, in hollow walls of buildings hundreds of them are found balled together. They do not sleep very soundly, for if they are disturbed they fly and squeak, and even try to bite with their tiny white teeth.

Poultry as a Recreation.
On a farm where the chickens are only scrub and mongrels, the women rarely spend their time in reading the poultry paper, or poultry department of a farm paper, but one of the family get purebred poultry and every scrap of poultry information is read with interest.

The billy fatigue of caring for chickens is greatly relieved by having the birds and fowls with pleasant thoughts. The busy of a pubescent fowl is the work of caring for them lighter. Success lies not only in knowing how to work, but in enjoying the work, and enjoyment in the work comes only when the work satisfies our craving for the useful, the profitable and the beautiful. Good poultry properly cared for does all this. Help the women folks to get better poultry, and increase both the profits and the pleasure on the farm.

Water for Domestic Purposes Good.

The State of Maine Laboratory of Hygiene—H. D. Evans, Director—reports on the quality of the Norway Water Co. as follows:

"The analysis of the winter sample of water from your public supply, sent to me on the 24th ult., shows the water to be in its usual good condition. There is no chemical or bacterial evidence of sewerage pollution to be found in this sample, which is about its usual condition for this season of the year. The long drought of the past fall and winter seems to have had but little effect on this water, which, in its present condition, would be considered first-class in every respect. It is a water well fitted to use for drinking, domestic or manufacturing purposes. I am enclosing the results of the present analysis."

The old "bach" who died the other day, being all women and especially his distant relatives so much that he left his entire estate of $200,000 to care for his twelve draught horses, did a good thing with his money, if he were not disposed to give it to any individuals. Undoubtedly, these animals were the most faithful friends he had, unless he were the owner of a good dog. Their work and friendship were not with a view to inheriting his wealth at his death, either, and one can't blame a lonely, friendless man for feeling deeply attached to them. By the terms of his will, as soon as one dies, another old horse is to be found and added to the number, so that the dozen will always be kept full. What a good fortune it will be to any horse that can get admitted to the equine old folks' home. And the money is to be in the hands of the society with the long name, too, so that it will be well handled and honestly expended. If this testator was as old as his relatives are, would he try to make out, it was a pretty humane and beneficent madness. Would there were more of it in the world.

Christendom has for so long regarded the cross as exclusively a Christian symbol that, except to a few ethnologists and scholars, the knowledge that the cross in its different forms is a common symbol among the red men of America when the white man came with his ships and his religion, and, indeed, that the cross had been shown to have been a sign to that ancient race which we are pleased to call the "Mound Builders," will come as something of a surprise.

After a most painstaking, hearing, extending over several days, the Committee on Industrial Arts and Exhibitions returned a report favorable to New Orleans as the place at which to hold an exposition to celebrate the completion of the Panama Canal.

The Power of Suggestion.

A physician is fond of relating a personal experience showing the power of suggestion. He says that a young clerk, fagged from overwork and the heat of a trying summer, consulted him as to his condition.

He put the usual questions by telephone or letter on the morrow. The next day the physician received a letter from the physician telling him that one of his lungs was seriously affected and that his heart was not quite as it should be. He was told to put his affairs in order; that though he might live for weeks, or even months, it was important that he should leave nothing unsettled.

Naturally such news, practically a death warrant, quite unnerved the patient. He stayed home that day from the office, and in a short time was in a most serious state. His people, alarmed, sent for the doctor.

On his arrival the physician was astounded. "Why, my friend, what have you been doing to yourself? You certainly were all right yesterday." "It's my lungs, doctor," said the patient. "Lungs, fiddlesticks! There is nothing at all the matter with your lungs," replied the doctor. "You were all right yesterday," said the patient. "You told me in your letter that my lungs were so seriously affected that I had but a few days more to live." And he produced the fatal letter.

"Well," said the doctor, "here is a pretty mess. I wrote you to take a few weeks' vacation at the seashore or in the mountains, and you would be as good as new in a short time. The letter you received was intended for another man. My secretary must have mixed the envelopes."

As may be imagined, the patient was overjoyed. It is needless to say his recovery was rapid.

And the other, he with the weak heart and not a strong heart, on receiving the letter intended for the other man, went at once to the mountains with the result that, though years have passed, he is in reasonably good condition.—Health Culture.

FRYEBOUR.

The Cameron family have moved into their new house. It is a model of convenience and very attractive outwardly.

Clarence Kimball's horse was frightened last week by an unreasonable auto, and kicked him clear of sleigh, harness, etc., including driver, and proceeded to run away.

Stephen Irish died suddenly after an illness of only two days. He had not been in good health for a year or more and a severe cold contracted Thursday, rapidly developed into pneumonia. Mr. Irish was a comrade of the Grand Army, a member of Grover Post. He served as a private in the 16th Regiment Maine Volunteers and when his term expired, he re-enlisted in the 31st Maine and was discharged at the close of the war. Since the death of his wife, his daughter Maud has been a devoted home-maker for him. Besides her, he is survived by two sons, Charles of East Conway, and Elmer of Winthrop, Mass., a sister, Mrs. John W. Conway, and two brothers. The funeral service conducted by Rev. Mr. Stone was held at the home of his son Charles, Interment at West Fryebour. Grover Post performed their burial service in accordance with the expressed wish of Mr. Irish.

LIFE SAVED AT DEATH'S DOOR.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Tex., "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption and then I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me."

Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years. Quick, safe, sure, it is the best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, laryngitis, asthma, croup, and all throat and lung troubles. 50c & $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by The Noyes Drug Store. 5-8

The Story of a Deer.

One morning a deer was in the forest with her little fawn. The father had gone away to a lake to get a drink of water. He was to be back the night before, but had not come yet. The mother began to think that he had been shot. While they were waiting there was heard a back from hounds not far away. She and her little fawn ran away as fast as they could but the little one was soon tired out. The mother decided to leave her little one alone and run for her life.

She hid the fawn under a pile of brush and then ran back toward the hounds. When they saw her she ran off to the left. She ran many miles and at last she came to a stop.

There were hounds on all sides of her except to the right and on that side was a village. Her only escape was to go through the village and that would be a little dangerous. She thought that she would have to try it.

She started at full speed through the village. She was shot at three times, but was not hit. At last she came to a lake where there were two men in a boat. The hounds were close upon her. She jumped into the lake and swam for the other shore. When she got about half way across the two men saw her. They rowed as fast as they could and soon overtook her. By this time she was well beat out, so she could not swim fast. One of the men caught her by the ear and drew his knife and these two men had steak for dinner the next day.

That night the deer came home and found his little one in the brush pile. The little one was hungry so the father and little one trotted off to find the mother.

Baldheaded Men

Getting Scarcer Every Year. Ninety-nine times in one hundred, baldness is caused by dandruff germs, which dig down deep into the roots of the hair, destroy its vitality and cause it to fall out.

If you have dandruff, the little invisible, persistent devil called dandruff germs are at work. Destroy them at once, or sooner or later they will cause your hair to fall out and you will be compelled to take your place in the baldheaded class.

Parlatan Sage is guaranteed by Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, to stop falling hair and itching scalp and to drive dandruff and kill the germs, or money back. It is the most delightful hair dressing in the world not sticky or greasy. Large bottle 50 cents.

Irving Ingalls is quite poorly in health this winter.Mrs. May Ingalls had the misfortune to fall on the ice and lamed her shoulder and arm badly.Rev. Mr. Witham and wife are the recipients of many kindly favors since the sickness of his wife, which they appreciate.Mrs. Ella Berry stopped at Mr. With-am's, Monday night, and started for Boston, Tuesday morning. She expects to spend the rest of the winter in Boston.In our two storms last week we got 18 inches of snow, while Thursday was the coldest day to snow all day that we remember. This makes the second time the rollers have been out to break the roads this winter.We have several cases of sickness in town. Mrs. A. H. Witham has been sick since Christmas morning. She had made considerable improvement when she was taken worse again and now is confined to the bed, needing tender care.
James N. Smith has been sick a long time and is badly off. Also Coleman Harmon has been a long time on his bed sick. Jennie Small, a nurse, is helping care for Mrs. Witham and is a fine girl.

SUNDAY RIVER.

ing the pulpit till Conference. Mr.
Lord is a genial man, a fine sermonizer, and is much liked by the people. In his discourse last Sunday, he declared his creed as follows: "I believe in the Fatherhood of God; I believe in the brotherhood of man; I believe in the Saviourhood of Jesus Christ; I believe in the Omnipotence of God, touching us on every hand, speaking to us through many voices, seeking our highest good;
I believe that there are a lot of moral and spiritual capabilities in every man, woman and child; I believe in depravity, but not total depravity; man has the ability to respond to the Divine Solitude to rise from the lower to the higher from the material to the spiritual,
from animalism to conscious sonship with the Father."

FIRE, SMOKE AND WATER SALE

We have settled our loss with the Insurance Companies and have the stock to dispose of. Not a single article goes back into our new store. All must go as we are determined to resume business with an entirely new stock. Our misfortune is your opportunity.

Our Whole Stock at 50 Per Cent. or Less of Former Prices

The damage is wholly from smoke and water; not a single thing that was burnt to be sold. If we should overlook anything damaged by fire and sell it, bring it back and receive your money in full.

Remember We Guarantee Everything Free From Burns

Below we quote you some of the new figures. Come early and clothe up. Provide for the future at our expense. Nothing over one-half of the old prices. Things discolored very much less.

Men's Winter Overcoats.

We have gone through all the coats and find nearly every one in first-class condition. Below are the prices. If any show damage the prices will be less than the prices below, according to damage.

All the $22 overcoats are now $11.
All the $20 overcoats are now $10.
All the $18 overcoats are now $9.
All the $15 overcoats are now $7.50.
All the $10 overcoats are now $5.
All the $8 overcoats are now $4.

Men's Raincoats

Some with regular collars, some with the convertible collars. Have been pressed and sponged and are in good condition.

Raincoats that sold for $18 are now $9.
Raincoats that sold for $15 are now $7.50.
Raincoats that sold for $12 are now $6.

Men's Top Coats

All of our Top Coats in the stock are to go at one price.
Regular $10.00 and $15.00 Coats, now

$5.00

One Black Worsted Overcoat, size 34, sold for $10.00. Now $1 00

Boys' Suits

Here's where you can't help plunging. Clothe up the boy. You'll never miss the money at these figures.

Boys' $6 suits for $3.
Boys' $5 suits for $2.50.
Boys' $4.50 suits for $2.25.
Boys' $4 suits for $2.
Boys' $3.50 suits for $1.75.
Boys' $3 suits for $1.50.
Boys' $2.50 suits for $1.25.
Boys' $2 suits for $1.

Boys' Overcoats

When you put a suit on the boy, fit him out with an overcoat. You can hardly help it when you see the quality of the coats and think of the little prices. Remember these are 50 per cent. or less.

Bath Robes

Big Crowd at Sales Sat

Out of the largest crowds seen streets for some time was out Saturday and strange to say, a large part of crowd were men, the majority of were out in search of bargains at Fire, Smoke and Water sale at Bangs' Pure Food Store.

The early train brought in a number of shoppers and many from the surrounding towns and the doors were opened at seven o'clock between two and three hundred were waiting to enter. About fifteen or twenty minutes after the doors were opened, the crowd at the door was so large that it was necessary to wait until 11 at night and at 12 o'clock day's shopping closed.

Charles F. Boubier and Ernest Hutchins were on police duty at the back the crowd at the door. A force of clerks were engaged who kept on the move every minute. These were Lee Smith, Randall, John Walker, Merritt Welch, E. Moulton, William A. Bicknell, Cummings, George Holmes, B. B. Evans, Mr. LaFrance, Frank Becht, Bert Barker, Fred Smith, H. D. S. E. M. Swett had his redoubt Saturday and the store was filled early morning until late at night eager purchasers.

V. W. Hills' fire sale, continued throughout the week and Saturday well patronized.

H. J. Bangs and C. F. Riddle their usual Saturday morning as grocers and had a large trade.

Monday morning found men women wending their way to the store and there was still a good trade throughout the day.

People who could not get into the sale, Saturday, came Monday. A number came from a distance Friday so as to be on the ground Saturday morning. They came from New Orleans and Cuba, and county, as well as Oxford county.

F. H. Noyes has been having a reduction sale and during the day evening did an extremely good business and in fact all the merchants did a thriving business and the amount of shopping was done in Saturday than in any other one of the history of Norway.

Rather an unusual incident happened Saturday evening on account of a fire in town during the day and evening about midnight, Howard D. cashier of the National Bank, was on to go to the bank and a number of merchants made some good size pots and the spoils of the day were curiously locked up in the vault.

NORWAY AND VICINITY

Norway Board of Trade Meeting. About twenty members of the Association met at Engine House Hall Saturday evening. Routine business done. The conditions of the fire for the Norway sewer were discussed and some changes in the draft suggested, and in a general way matter of sewerage was talked over seemed to be the sense of those present that the village needs a sewerage system. The Maine of East Water was present and explained to the relation the proposed meeting of Maine State Seed Improvement Association and the Maine Dairy Inspection Association to be held here some next December. The matter was discussed and it was voted to extend an invitation to these associations to meet here. It is hoped that it will be accepted. The executive committee were authorized to extend the invitation which doubt has been done.

Marriage—Oroonok. Richard Menig and Marion Crook. Auburn were united in marriage, Saturday evening at seven o'clock, at home of Rev. M. C. Ward.

Mr. and Mrs. Menig were former residents of Norway and have a wide circle of friends in town. Mr. and Mrs. attended the clerk's ball in the evening and when it was learned of the marriage and confetti was in abundance the couple received a warm reception.
